University purchase doubles land holdings

by Harry Gauzman

The university is back in the real estate business, and will celebrate its Centennial in 1986 with a substantial increase in property, according to an announcement this week by officials that John Carroll University has purchased both the grounds at Gesu parish and the entire complex at Belfair.

"We've been eyeing these areas ever since anyone can remember, so we figured we might as well buy the land and get it over with," said Vice President for Development Paul Counts. "Besides, it was a real steal. We gave them access to our swimming pool and they called it even," he said.

University Resident T.P. O'Golly did not attend the press conference because he was busy looking for a graduation speaker, but commented during a phone interview that the acquisition is "just the shot in the arm this place needed." He continued, "I think we really need to spread our wings a bit if we're going to compete with Boston College for bodies (students). Not only that, I've never been to Belfair, and I wanted to see what the inside of the place looked like," he said.

Even though the land does not become Jack Carroll property until 1985, university officials are fairly certain as to how the new areas will be utilized. Fairs Vice President Dr. Laugh-in said, "We're pretty certain as to how we'll use these areas. Gesu is going to be built into a major-college-sized fieldhouse. We'll have to raze the church and rectory and start from scratch, but, gee whiz it's going to look nice."

As for the use of Belfair, Laugh-in sees that land as a multi-purpose facility. "We were talking about it the other day, and it seems we'll use the

by Red MacIntosh

This year's long-awaited big-name concert came and went last Wednesday with Student Union suffering a terrible financial loss.

Unknown to practically everyone, Student Union arranged for rock star Bruce Springsteen to perform in Kulas auditorium. Only ten people attended, including the roadies and cleaning ladies. Losses amounted to $25,000.

The miniscule attendance was due to a total lack of publicity. "We didn't know if it would be in Kulas or the gym, so we didn't have the IXY's make any signs" public relations director Janet Virus said.

Springsteen was making a tour of his famous guest appearances across the country. "My last albums haven't done so well," said Springsteen. "I remember the great concerts we had at Carroll ten years ago, and got sort of nostalgic driving down I-90."

Springsteen apparently had a falling-out with the reigning Belkin Brothers Productions Inc., the primary producer of concerts in northeast Ohio. "Carroll couldn't get Cindy Lauper, so they asked me to stop by (for $20,000)," he said.

The debacle, has brought into question the leadership of the present Union administration. When confronted, President Slim Cavendish said, "What concert? Nobody tells me anything. I guess the can-

SUCH A DEAL — Blue Streak officials got the better end of the deal when they acquired this and other property in exchange for use of our swimming pool.

Revolt halts rec-gym work

by Edwin R. Murrow

Demolition of the Military Seance building may be delayed past the scheduled June 1984 date due to a rumored revolt by ROTTEDC.

ROTTEDC, which uses the building for Military Seance classes and other games, has said unofficially it will not give up the building. Regular spring maneuvers posted for June have been switched from Chagrin Valley Metropark to an unnamed site. Insiders believe that site to be John Carroll.

"We feel really close to this building," Col. Brokeglass Eagleeye said. Eagleeye is chairman of the Military Seance Department and believed to be head of the outlawed Black Boot, a terrorist organization.

"It's just another encroachment of the academic-intellectual complex," Eagleeye continued. "When is this country going to realize it's immoral to disregard our military when people are fighting in India."

ROTTEDC has reportedly begun preparations for a long siege. "They ordered 500 pounds of our meatballs" said Job Spacely, manager of Soggy Foods. The university has forbidden ROTTEDC to keep any of its own live ammunition.

The preparations include installing cots in the basement of the building. "All I know is if they stay more than a week, we'll have to charge them full room and board. Them's the rules," commented Lack Jollies, director of Haunting.

Fr. Jimbo Fluffy, director of Replacement, is rumored to be behind the revolt. "I'm not saying it's true mind you, but what a great way to get experience. What are you going to do after college?" he said.

Campus Maturity has been cautioned to be on alert. When asked about the countermeasures, Chef McCavity said, "What's a lert. I never saw one."

Adding more fuel to the emotional flame is the dismissal by the university of Sgt. Charlie Brownski, a favorite of the cadets. Said cadet leader Dan Ashtray, "We really miss the big guy. All he said when he left was 'I shall return'."

Students planning to take summer courses are advised to bring helmets and lawn chairs.

SU president gains new duties

by Sonia Tann

Whoever said that the student voice is not heard at this university is in for a surprise, since the Board of Trustees has made the unprecedented decision to allow the newly-elected president of the Student Union serve as university president for the 1984-85 school year also. Current Jack Carroll Resident

T.P. O'Golly will complete his term and then go on a one-year sabbatical to Boston College.

According to Vice Resident and Assistant to the university resident Doug Backwater, this decision came as part of the university Student Envelopment Program. "Max Heck and Jim Puffy originated the idea. They were major catalysts in the attempt to convince the Board of Trustees this plan has merit," he said.

Displacement Director Jim Puffy said, "Mike and I thought this would be a great way to give one of the kids some real hands-on experience while still in school. It's probably the best No-op assignment we have to date," he said.

University Resident O'Golly had some reservations, though. "When I encouraged this Student Envelopment Program, I didn't think Max would get so wrapped up in it. Now I'm stamped for Boston and barely have time to pack," he said. O'Golly mused, "I might as well stay in New England next year, too, because there won't be anything left of this place to return to. Gads!"

You circle it

It's the time of year that makes everyone look around and wonder what project to work on that will break them out of the drudgery that Old Man Winter imposes upon us. This condition is not only experienced by students, but teachers, staff and even administrators are affected by the entity known as Spring Fever.

When students get the fever, they either go to Florida or South Carolina for break or, if classes are still in session, they don't attend their classes in rebellion. Teachers give tests to relieve anxiety, and staffers just pine away until something new comes along.

But administrators do more than change their daily routine. This past week, officials here decided to add some spice to life by buying half of University Heights, including Belfair and Gesu Parish Church and School. We are (sure, not sure) such a move was a good idea.

Our university decision-makers (always seem to, never seem to) weigh the consequences of an action, especially one of this importance. They (realize, do not realize) that their decisions affect all of us at Jack Carroll. It is (commendable, atrocious) that the administration operates in this fashion.

We (support, abhor) the fact that the university is trying to expand its horizons. The present administration (can control, cannot control) the existing space situation, so this new undertaking will be (no trouble, a royal pain) to contend with in the future. Perhaps this is the (responsible management, pigheaded ignorance) we've come to expect from the officials that hold the reigns here.

Anyway, it is (refreshing to know, discouraging to see) that university representatives are acting (in our best interest, irresponsibly).

International concerns

For three and one half years now I have been a student at Carroll, and I have yet to have a theology teacher deal with the ethical question of youth in Asia. Why is it that every time the youth of some other country have a problem we Americans have to bail them out?

I heard one Sociology professor explain that violence is casually linked to youth in Asia. He said that no human should accept the idea that if we got rid of all the old people, it would be the same thing as having youth in Asia.

Sometimes I wonder whether anybody is ever going to do anything. I read in the paper last week that youth in Asia is so common that parents can be paid by their governments not to have more of them. It seems pretty silly to me, but what can be done about it?

Jesuits express anxiety about student body

by Bread Fenda

Rector of Rodman Hall

"First of all, we from the Jesuit community would like the students to know that the principle and foundation of a Jesuit university is focused on the promotion of sound minds and round, er, I mean sound, bodies in the Murphy, I mean in the students," commented Fr. Bread Fenda, Rector of Rodman Hall.

"Wait a minute, Bready," interrupted Fr. Dim Puffy of the campus No-op Program. "I think that what we really wanna be doing, if we're serious about careers, is giving the students some experience."

"Listen you potlickers," growled Fr. Dry Rake from behind his Foster-Grant badman reflecting glasses, "get this straight: these kids need to understand discipline, moderation, and computer information systems ... without these valuable assets, they are going to be nobodies; then who will we raise our development money from?"

Puffy then pointed out, in his earthy midwestern cornhusker's drawl that "Yeah, fundraising is really really important, but we gotta ask these kids the most important question of their lives: Whaddya wanna be when ya grow up?"

Suddenly Fr. Case A. Bubonic waxed philosophical. "My would-be mentor Soaring Kick-the-guard briefly treated this historical issue of monism in metaphysics. However, if we are to outline the Kantian critique and Rahner's adaptation of the Transcendental method of systematic theology, we must consult my illustrious colleague and confidant Dr. Herman Neutical. You see, Dr. Neutical specializes in matters of ultimate concern."

... get this straight: these kids need to understand discipline, moderation, and computer information systems ...

Fr. Bubonic, who had continued to elucidate the distinction between analytic and systematic philosophy as presented by Soaring Kick-the-guard in his book Johannes the Athlete, was, fortunately, silenced by the Rector.

"Let's return to the scintillating topic of Jesuit life on campus, and will you please try to be brief. Maybe some comments from the East coast contingent of Jesuits is in order!"

"Oh, please, may I comment?" exclaimed Fr. Merry Salvo, who is JCU's specialist in Russian and Slavic studies. "Moving to Carroll has made living the Ignatian ideal so much easier since I left Chestnut Hill in Massachusetts!"

"Even today a new inspiration came to me. I remember a conversation between the two dogs that I heard on (Nevsky) Prospect. Good, I thought to myself, Now I will learn all. I must get hold of the correspondence that these wretched dogs have been carrying on. Then I shall certainly learn something. Dogs are diplomatic you know!"

Suddenly Fr. Collie O'Kennell screamed "What do you know about dogs anyhow; Salvo? You have never investigated the historicity or the religious significance of dogs from within the context of the Hebraic tradition! I have dug dogs in four different archeological digs, and your perspective is definitely not caninical!"

"Shush!" blurted out Fr.

Bready Fenda. "This is no time for caninical doggerel. Remember, the students will read this forum! Fr. Tip O'Golley, would you like to offer your comments as President of a university that is struggling to survive in a dog-eat-dog world?"

... the principle and foundation of a Jesuit university is focused on the promotion of sound minds ...

"Well Bready, as President of this fine Midwestern university, I would first like to point out that things were never run this way in Bahston. The idea of moving to Cleveland was rahthah, with a stress on the ah, engaging."

As I pointed out in my Student Union address (Ad Urbi et Dormitori), all of you Midwesterners between the ages of 18-65 look the same to us provincial Easterners."

"It is also incumbent upon me, as President of this fine university, to discuss the Jesuit system of education. Our 'Irratio Studiorem' was designed by an obscure man known as St. Fallacious.

Fallacious was a French intellectual who wrote La Dialectique des Exercices Physical. It's main ideal of "Semper Ubi Sub Ubi" can be found inscribed on the corner stone of every Jesuit school."

"My fellow Easterner, Fr. Pita Fancy may wish to comment on the mystical tradition of the Jesuits ..."

"There should always be men," said Fancy, "vowed to the task of exemplifying by their lives the general sanctification of human endeavor, because it is no longer the atom that lives, but the universe within it! And if nothing else works, we can always read the directions."

"Thank you, Pita," said Bready. "Perhaps Fr. Dill Pichl would like to discuss his life here at JCU. Dill? Dill? Will somebody wake up Dill?"

"I will!" yelled Fr. Go Zombie, who immediately jarred Fr. Pichl by rapping him on the head with a tennis racquet.

With this fiasco taking place, Fr. Fenda determined that further discussion would not serve the purpose of the forum article, and reminded the Carroll community to semper ubi sub ubi.

disconnected, but my influence is nearly at an end.

The Carroll News as well as the whole Carroll community hesitates to recognize terrorist organizations and their wicked proposals.

If only I could make clear the terror that awaits JCU! It is difficult to comprehend unless one has been there as I have. I have seen the librarial atrocities with my own eyes; librarians strapped in chairs being forced to read one Harlequin Romance after another, the security guard knocked unconscious with a copy of the Complete Un-abridged Works of William Shakespeare, the patrons being forces at gunpoint to carry books out to a waiting truck, with Marx and Thoreau and Whitman (although he probably enjoyed it) and Vonnegutte all mixed together in a sort of literary potpourri.

This will be the result if the system is not changed. Please take action while you have the chance. I beg you.

May grads will remember Senior Week

by Dorothy Gale

The Class of 1984 is in for a real treat this May because the events for Senior Week are going to be an experience they'll never forget, according to Senior Week Chairman Raphi Duanything.

"This year's activities are going to be so much fun, I can hardly wait," he beamed. Duanything recalled, "Last year I was attending summer classes during Senior Week and the parties were alright, but I think these guys could have more fun."

The chairman believes that the most important part of the week is going to be an establishment of a mood for the whole week. "The theme this year is going to be 'Jewish Holiday', and all of the events are going to coincide with activities that my people practice every year," Duanything said. He mentioned the opening event would be a mixer with a traditional Hebrew band and all the delicacies of the land of Israel.

Duanything realizes the importance of getting off campus, too. "For Wednesday I've scheduled a trip to Cedar Center for what I think is going to be a fun excursion," he said. "Everyone will get twenty dollars (from their registration fee, of course) at the beginning of the day. Whoever gets the greatest amount of goods purchased for twenty bucks wins a dinner for two at Corky and Lenny's. Such a deal!"

Plans for the weekend include a trip to the synagogue on Saturday for a rip-roaring good time. Duanything exclaimed, "If those guys don't love this, there's something wrong with them!"

"For me to say that we've got a good schedule is an understatement," Duanything quipped. "I know I'll be working hard during that week, but I expect to have some fun, too."

Both moral and financial support have been provided by the alumni office for the Senior Week program, according to Alumni Defector Tim Fleaman. "We support this thing because it's a good investment. And we got Raphi (Duanything) this year so we knew costs would be kept to a minimum," he said.

Snack Bar gets good rating

by Don D'Amore

Good times, good friends, and good cuisine all abound in our own backyard at the JCU "SNACK BAR" located in the SAC Building between Room One and the Alumni Hall of Fame. The Snack Bar is conveniently accessible to those shoppers who like to spend the afternoon downstairs browsing in the Bookstore.

Upon entering the establishment one immediately feels treated like a unique individual as you click your way through the turnstile and become a statistic of that day's attendance.

The proprietor will take your order with a smile and probably forget what it was before he turns around. Never fear, it all tastes the same anyway.

Check out at the register and it's time to "seat yourself" providing one with a sense of old fashioned down home style (complete with T.V. in adjoining Room One) choose from either the solid wood booth or the plywood chair.

The eating utensils are 'contemporary picnic' in style (plastic forks and paper plates). Modern music is played live every day by fellow classmates. Such selections as "Tron," "Dig-Dug" and "Centipede" can be heard repeatedly on a crowded night.

All food is reasonably priced except for water which is free if you don't use a cup.

University doubles land land across Belvoir as a kind of catch-all. Seniors will be able to live there in apartment-style quads, and the older Jesuits will probably move there, too." Laugh-in said the Jesuits were being displaced because of plans to make Goat Hall into a parking garage.

Some administrators are skeptical about the acquisition. Vice Resident for Disservices John Realty commented, "I don't see what all the fuss is about. So we more than double our land holdings — what's the big deal? It just means more work for me. At least my office is nice," he said.

"I just wonder how Counts does it," mused a bewildered Ed Shave-hairs, Vice Resident for Business. "I've been trying to get Gesu to sell out for years and those nuns won't talk to me. And Belfair has always been a high priority, too, but the price was never right. He got them both though. I guess that's why they pay him the big money," he said.

didates debate was too much competition."

Finance committee chairman Bliss Yawn eased the suspicions that the Union is going into default. "We're just gonna charge $5 a month to all discount card holders, retroactive to September. They all should have been there."

The question over whether to hold the concert in Kulas or the gym developed into a struggle between Student Union and John Carroll On Stage. "We wanted Kulas for our stage-adaptation of Bjorn Swenson's The History of Norway in Verse," said Joan Brawny, On Stage director. "It would have been a world premier, with profits reaching Valhalla. Kids at Carroll ain't got no culture," she said.

The university has refused to underwrite the Union losses. "It was a good concert. I got my money's worth," University Resident Fr. T.P. O'Golly said.

As for another concert this semester, Cavendish explains, "there won't be any. We made a recording of the Springsteen concert, I guess." The Union plans to play the recording in Kulas next Thursday for only $6.00 with a discount card, $7.00 without.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

by Jim Donohue

Despite the display of wallpaper entertainment in the Rat Bar Thursday night, a good time was had by all at John Carroll. Continuing their weekly sabbatical to the campus watering hole were Marcy Farrell and her cohorts in crime "Tha" Friday and Kiera Kmiecik.

Friday afternoon, the "Elk" migrated to the usual happy hour in the ol' Skeller to pay tribute to the once again successful Blue Streak hoop team. Highlighting the festivities with a most inspiring speech was our bestest buddy and big toe Father O'Malley. For those not involved in the elbow bending activities, dancing machines of a sort were cutting the rug for a good cause. Diane "ain't no dumbo" Palumbo and Jeff "get" smart were among the hearty crowd. Adding to the eventful night was the Phi Beta Phi mixer. In attendance was the "master Beta" himself — Jon Bokovitz sporting his tin of Copenhagen.

Hooters Basketball — what else can be said about Saturday — The tavern of O'Leary and Coyne played host to a record (35 ±) band of misfits. Who could be more misfit than Myles "I'd rather be Lugeing" Gallagher. Speaking of misfits, rumor has it that there were quite a few at Capers Saturday night. Banned from the bar went Billy "Beaumont" Dawes and the "lord god Canoe" himself John Marsh.

For those surviving the preliminaries, the Student Union and the IXYS sponsored their annual "Casino Night" in the O'Dea Room. Displaying remarkable gambling prowess were Vince Brennan, Sean "Men at Work" MacAndrews, Pat Gould and Joe Mason.

The dead play tennis

New technology opens doors for spring sports

by Hy Lobb

In an all out effort to remain competitive in the hunt for the Presidents' Athletic Conference All-sports trophy, John Carroll announced yesterday that it will implement a recent breakthrough made by a joint effort of the Biology and Chemistry departments.

Recent experimentation at the Bohanski Science Center has resulted in the perfection of techniques which provide inanimate bodies with the level of skills necessary to perform competitively in the PAC. The inclusion of such players on spring rosters may well be a desperate attempt to cover inadequacies in the already established depository program into which the university has already invested an exorbitant sum.

Project co-ordinator E. Bruise McQueen seemed hesitant in giving the go-ahead for employing the advance so soon after its discovery commenting that "We have not yet satisfactorily tested the reaction time of the prototypes."

Director of Jocks, Dr. Perry Swipert, dismissed McQueen's reservations though saying "I don't know what it is he has in his pipe but we've been playing with a bunch of stiffies in the spring for years now, we'll take a few more anyway we can!"

Regardless of the great potential of grave problems arising even before the first spring sports begin, other PAC school are taking the threat very seriously. An investigation into the past histories of the reborn Streaks has already been commissioned to determine the validity of claims that some had been involved in Division I programs last year.

NOT MY FAULT — This Lady netter is not pleased to return the lightning-fast serve of her opponent.

Draab axed in major move

by Dennis Casey

The Jack Carroll University Athletic Department has made a most startling, yet welcome announcement. Head Basketball coach Timmy Draab has been fired and will be replaced by Eddie "The Heckler" Rahrah.

This news was made known to this reporter early Saturday morning after the Blue Freaks capped off yet another disappointing season with a thirty-point loss to Ursline.

Athletic Director Gerry O'Schweickert (Oh-Sh-WHY-kurt), commenting on the sudden replacement said, "It was in the school's best interest. We have to get some enthusiasm back in the games. We need a coach who isn't afraid to really make a fool of himself if it will help the team."

Olympic committee names new hockey coach

by Sal Ahmeyhed

SARAJEVO, YUGOSLAVIA (API) — Ken Krsolovic, former head coach of the John Carroll University hockey club, has been immediately named to guide the fortunes of the United States Olympic squad for the 1988 Games in Calgary, Canada.

With a lifetime record of 1-2 at the helm of the JCU icers, Krsolovic took the announcement in stride, while the rest of the hockey world shook with fervor.

"My record is not indicative of the type of coach I am. I knew that when I was able to put together a new team in just two months to beat Kenyon, I could certainly beat the Russians with four years of preparation," the confident 26-year old said.

United States Olympic Committee officials defended their choice. "Word spread fast about how Krsolovic turned on an entire campus about his team. We are confident that he can trigger the entire nation to the same results with the U.S. team," a high-up official said.

The deposed Lou Vairo, coach of the 1984 squad that finished seventh at Sarajevo, the USA's worst showing ever, noted, "Hey, if a guy like me from Brooklyn could lead us where I did, I'm shu' a kid from Euclid can retu'n the gold to the States."

"Given the proper personnel, I rank right up there with Bear Bryant, John Wooden, - and above all - Gerry Schweickert," an obviously elated SID turned-sports giant stated. "I realize I'll be giving up my shot at JCU Man of the Year, but, hey, what can I say, fellas, you can't keep a good man down, especially when his country calls him to duty."

As for the rest of the staff, the rookie mentor had an immediate addition. "Yeah, I asked Gerry Grim to continue to assist me. At JCU he always arranged it so we could borrow some pucks from some guy he knew at a bar. Do you guys know how hard it is to coach a hockey team without pucks?" intoned Krsolovic.

Hockey moguls elsewhere were not at all surprised by the appointment.

"Yeah, I remember always wishing I was like Ken in the pee-wee hockey leagues in our childhood in Canada," an envious Wayne Gretzky admitted. "I always said to my dad, 'Dad, that kid's gonna make it big some day.' He may not have much hair, but I'd still say Ken's made it big, wouldn't you?"

This will not be Krsolovic's first touch with Olympic hockey, the Carroll News has learned. "Yeah, it was before my pro career flopped and I killed that little girl in a car crash. Back at the '80 Games, I think," an aged Jim Craig recalled. "Everybody thinks I was looking for my dad, but heck no, I was looking for my lifelong hockey buddy Kenny Krsolovic. I bet him we'd win the gold, and, well, Ken never was too good at paying up on bets."

John Carroll's loss — America's gain.

Look out, Russia. Here comes Krsolovic!

New hoop coach named here

Eddie has been relegated to coaching from the bleachers while following the Freaks for many seasons. Obviously delighted with the appointment, Eddie responded, "Well now I can put my philosophy into action there. It's been a long time since a head coach has worn obnoxious suits and sport coats and that will be job one when I take over."

When asked what other changes he will be implementing Coach Rahrah responded, "I'd like to have the gym painted in a checked pattern and get rid of that goofy nickname, Blue Freaks just doesn't cut it. I'm also going to get some beer here on the sidelines, maybe one of the fraternities can help me with that."

Sports Information Director Sid "How should I know?" Kursalloyiz (Kurs-ALL-o-yiz), amazed with the announcement, stated, "It's a real bummer. Geez, I just finished compiling lots of neat stats on Draab and now I have to dig some stats up on Eddie. It's a real bummer."

Head coach Draab, when asked about his firing, coldly responded, "No Comment. All you want is quotes! Now get outta here!"

Based on the reactions by the key officials in the Athletic branch of the university, the Blue Freaks, will be allowed back into men's PAC play. The past few seasons have been hard on the Freaks.

IDRIES SHAH:

GOLDEN RULE

"Do to others as you would have them do to you."

Traditional philosophy has so deteriorated over the centuries that people have come to regard this trick-statement as a piece of advice.

It was originally intended to make people think. They were expected to react by asking why it should be a good policy, considering that most people want the wrong things for themselves.

Blatant immorality runs amuck in Daytona

by Dr. Tom Miller

As Spring Break rapidly approaches Carroll students are once again inundated with offers from leftist hucksters seeking to exploit our fine upstanding student body with trips to disgusting places like Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale.

These trips will not only deplete the financial reserves of even the most well-heeled Carrollite, but also, and more importantly, lead to the severe moral decay which must not be allowed to happen if we honor our reputation as a free-thinking and progressive scholastic community.

It has been a well-established scientific fact since the early nineteenth century that the rays of the sun can have a markedly detrimental effect on human thought processes. This was conclusively proven by Dr. Albert Epstein's famous equation " $S = B - 3$ ".

Simply translated for the layman, this means that when the sun's rays (S) are increased, your letter grade (B), drops three places (3) to failing (F). This is hardly desirable for the average student. It is, in fact, the lack of sunshine in the Greater Cleveland area which is responsible for the exceptionally high grades experienced here by students.

Another adverse effect the sun's rays have is on the actual behavior of the students. When on these Southern trips, these students engage in activities which they would never think of participating in in their relatively sunless Northern home communities. These activities include massive intake of various alcoholic beverages, mingling freely with members of the opposite sex, and exposing oneself in a semi-nude condition in public.

By this time you are probably wondering, as I am, just what the point is that I am trying to bring out. "Dr. Miller," you are undoubtedly asking yourself, "What can I do to avoid these pitfalls?" Well, it makes me very proud to be able to present the thinking man's solution: the Carroll News ATPG Vacation Package.

This vacation package, jointly sponsored by the Carroll News and JCU's newest fraternity, ATPG (the Anti-Tan Pale Group), is the only answer for the serious student to whom Spring Break is nothing but an unavoidable nuisance. The entire philosophy behind this special offer is complete avoidance of the mind-destroying sun's rays for an entire week.

Participants will be locked in their rooms during the day, with mandatory blackout curtains in place, where they will be free to study. After nightfall, since lying on the beach has, after all, become somewhat of Spring Break tradition, participants will be bussed to the shores of beautiful Lake Erie where they may bask by starlight. To relieve the monotony, nightly National Geographic documentaries will be shown.

Although one would think that such an opportunity for intellectual stimulation and advancement would be priced far out of the average student's budget, not so! Due to a special government grant, we are able to make the entire package available for a mere $33.73 per person. Simply contact the Carroll News office any time before Spring Break. Please hurry, however, because space is limited.

Senior Spotlight

by Don D'Amore

The big moment is finally here! Our graduation speaker has been selected! As I've previously reported, Fr. O'Malley has decided to do the selecting of our speaker himself because of difficulties arising with the list of candidates we class officers provided to him based upon class input. Anyway he experienced some problems.

President O'Malley was turned down by his top three choices who were: The President of Catholic University, The President of Heinz Catsup Corporation, and the President of the United States. Three alternates have accepted who are: the Head of Maintenance at Cuyahoga Community College, Chef Boy-Ar-Dee, and the Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan. Despite this stunning gold mine of candidates to pick from, O'Malley has unprecedently jumped off the list once more in his announcement yesterday that our commencement speaker will be Barbi Benton.

Among other senior class news, I received a post card from class treasurer, Chris (the Italian Stallion) Fortunato. He reports that he is enjoying the Bahamas with the money he embezzled from our class bank account and the Student Union treasury. Because of this unexpected circumstance, our next countdown party's format will be slightly different. We can no longer afford to video tape them, or provide free beer. Class president John Breens will bring a tape recorder to the event and I promised to draw pictures of people that are there. So we can save that stuff for our class reunions.

The event itself will be something never attempted before on this campus: A Tap Water Tasting Party! Tap water from throughout the greater Cleveland area will be shipped in for your sampling pleasure. (Please bring your own Dixie cup!)

Are we planning even more fun before we get out of here? Does John Dempsy drink Open Pit? Does Tim Cavanagh know how to drink the Student Union's treasury? Do any of us know how to attend anything without drinking anything? These are all probing questions that are just too intense or a humble Speech Pathology major like myself to answer, so I won't.

WE TRY HARDER — That's the slogan of the new Jesuit car rental service out of Goat Hall. The company office will be located in the Goat Hall parking complex (see story on page one).

Gesu to throw its last fling

by Bryan Loos

Well, it appears that, with the news of the upcoming "gutting" of Gesu (see page 1), those crazy elementary kids have decided to blow the last of their budget on activities before the "walls come down" as scheduled. "And what a blast they have planned," says Sister Anna Thesia.

Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones will roll onto the Gesu grounds for a scheduled concert, Friday, March 2nd at 8 p.m. Seating is limited to the first 200,000 ticket buyers, so it's suggested that you do not wait to get yours until you get to the door.

Opening for the Stones will be Gesu's own Sister Margaret O'Manly. She will be performing several popular tunes of yesterday and today on her tambourine. Sorry, but no bottles or cans will be permitted on the grounds during this segment of the show. Tickets will be on sale this week during all recesses.

Of course, there will be no classes on Monday, March 5th on account of it being the Feast of St. Stanley (1962 Parma bowling tournament champion), but that hasn't slowed the students' plans. A banquet, in honor of St. Stanley, will be held in Room 115 at 7 p.m.

All cooking will be done by the grade 2 home economics class, so the food will be plenty, and, says class president and organizer Pee-Wee Pisane, "the Gatoraid will be served liberally, so bicycles will be impounded from anyone not considered fit to ride it home." A mixer will follow at 9 p.m. and the Gesu students invite all Carroll students to join in the fun.

The final round of the jump-rope and jacks championships are scheduled for Saturday, March 4th at noon.

Finally, as a result of the scheduled demolition of the Gesu complex, graduation has been pushed ahead to Sunday, March 18th at 1 p.m. on the Gesu quad. After careful deliberations over who was to be the speaker, the original choices of Dr. Benjamin Spock, Mr. Rogers (who was last year's speaker), and Big Bird have been ditched for Sister Mary Lynn Bigwig's choice of Dr. James D. Watson, Ph. D.

Dr. Watson will be talking to the graduating 4th graders about their future in relation to recombinant lactose operon DNA research as it relates to eucaryotic intron/exon mutagenesis. Additionally, Dr. Watson will be touring the genetic cloning labs at Gesu's sister campus, John Carroll (Gauzman, CN, 2/15/84), immediately following commencement.
